

Officer Lundrigan of the police force relates an amusing incident which occurred Saturday evening. It seems that several boys had been annoying the Jew who keeps the junk store near Ferry street and he came up town and notified Officer Lundrigan. One of the young men who was of the disturbing party was near by and was pointed out by the Jew. Officer Lundrigan told the Jew to get a warrant and he would serve it. The young man heard the remark and made tracks for Worth's wharf on Commercial street; Officer Lundrigan sauntered along behind him and as the boy reached the end of the wharf and saw the officer near he jumped into the cold waters of the Kennebec and swam to City Landing where he was assisted out by several of his friends. The funny part of the story is that the officer had no intention of arresting the fellow without a warrant and besides the Jew thought better of the matter and did not seek the young man's arrest.
