Rabbi's Message

The Power of One Person!

Imagine you are walking in a vast, hot desert. Its been hours since youve had a sip of water, and youre beginning to doubt whether you will make it to your destination.

Suddenly you see a small grove of fruit trees, with a tent under one of the trees. As you come closer, rubbing your eyes in disbelief, an old man comes running over to you. He invites you over to the tent, helps you wash up and serves you a fresh homemade meal as you luxuriate in the shade.

Refreshed, you are ready to move on. When you offer to pay, the old man brushes aside your money, saying that all he wants is that you should express your thanks to the one true G-d, who created heaven and earth.

This is what Abraham and Sarahs guests experienced on a regular basis. And you know what? It worked. More and more people began to speak about and acknowledge G-d, and the ripple effects are still being felt today.

Good Shabbos,
Rabbi Wilansky

"An Enormous Personality in Chabad and Beyond, to be greatly missed"

With sadness, we inform you of the passing of Chana Wilansky's uncle, the Head Chabad Emissary to France.

Rabbi Shmuel Azimov, known throughout the world for his educational influence and for heading a Jewish revival in France and beyond, passed away on Wednesday at the age of 69.

QUESTION

How Can I Pray to a G-d I Cant See?

Youve got a wall, a chair and a self and all that is all very concrete, occupying real, hi-definition space. Then youve got this infinite, invisible Gd. And youve got to fit Him somewhere in there. But, of course, He doesnt fit.

ESSAY

A Lesson from a Robot

The line between creator and creation has gotten blurrier lately, thanks to sophisticated robots that are smart enough to invent technologies of their own. Who has the right to patent these cybersolutions, the inventor of the robot, or the robot itself?
