Prefatory Note

This Dedication Journal commemorates the dedication of Temple Beth El's new building. Hundreds of men and women worked to make this building beautiful within and noble without. It symbolizes the hope that inspired them to embrace Conservative Judaism.

For they hoped that their Temple would glorify God and give dignity to them.

The efforts of the many workers are heart-warming to remember. However, in this modest report we have touched on only the highlights of the last three years. No one could possibly record all the wonderful acts of sacrifice of the members and friends of Temple Beth El.

But to them all we extend the clasp of congratulation. This is their day. In their hearts is a sweet reward.

To the editorial and business staffs, and to the many others who helped with this Journal, I express my thanks. This book could not have been done without them.
